

HOST A WORKSHOP

Learning together is a great way to build relationships whatever your age. Running a workshop for your community could be lots of fun and a great place for people to have their perceptions of the Christian faith challenged.

You may well have talented people in your community who could run workshops. Here are some Workshop ideas you could use.

If you are hosting a workshop get people to register beforehand by email or phone so that you can cater to the numbers who will attend. Have an upper limit to the number of people who can come along as if a workshop is too big some people won't get a chance to get actively involved

If you want to bring someone in from outside your community to run a workshop here are some links to a whole range of possible opportunities.
